IT'S NOT EASY BEING GREEN SECRETARY

I think I am quite green, but I could be greener. I know it's important.

I am aware that, due to global warming, huge glaciers in the Antarctic could melt. If they do, sea levels will rise significantly. While I am currently living half-way up a hill, "I'm all right Jack" as the saying goes; but that's no way to be thinking of things. A substantial rise in sea levels will have a devastating effect on poorer countries and coastal communities (not to mention the wildlife). It appears that it is always the poor who suffer most.

The Old Testament prophets had quite a bit to say about how the health of our relationship with God correlates with how we treat the poor and oppressed. And Jesus said he came to bring good news to the poor.

While our contribution to carbon reduction can feel small and insignificant, that's no way to think about things either. The wellbeing of God's creation is our concern because how can we be at peace with God while we are participating in the destruction of his creation? If I truly believe that God is revealed through creation, why am I party to despoiling that revelation?

At home, we try to recycle much of our waste. This includes the normal things like plastic, metals, glass, paper, card and food. We also recycle batteries, printer ink cartridges and, more recently, razor blades. But we could do more.

For many of us, one of our biggest contributions to our carbon footprint is our travel by car. Owning an electric car is an option but the cost, range of car battery and accessibility to a charging point are all major factors to take into consideration when thinking of making the change.

It's not easy being green, it can be costly and complicated.

The first Easter was also costly and complicated.

<https://ecochurch.arocha.org.uk/go-green-er-for-lent/> suggests many ways in which you and I can have a greener Lent. The website sees Lent as an “opportunity to reflect on the practice of fasting and commit to giving up something that brings a real benefit to nature and helps address climate change.”

Taking time to pray and reflect could lead to making changes in our everyday. Suggestions include going plastic and/or waste free, switching off/from digital for a time, buying local or second hand, trying plant-based menus and getting out into nature more.

Not just giving up chocolate, then.

To participate now in God's presence in the world as a follower of his Son is to do what I can to look after and to help save this world. It's not easy being green, but it feels like it's a spiritual imperative.

CAREY

Tribute to Brian Jones

It with sadness that we record the death of Brian Jones on 11th February. At the age of 96 he was our oldest church member. He and his wife, Margaret moved to Hemel in 1966 and came into membership at Marlowes Baptist Church, later Carey, in 1977. For his National Service he was in the Air Force towards the end of the war, but stayed in this country. Most of his working life was spent working for Rickett and Coleman, for the latter years as a sales manager. He also worked for several years at Samaritans in Watford.

At Marlowes and then Carey, Brian held many posts. At various times he was a deacon, transport officer, on the Fabric Committee and probably held other posts. He was an artist, and at one time was Chairman of the local Arts Society which met at the Old Town Hall where he held an exhibition once.

He will be remembered with great affection.
